

Subject: Re: Please step up
From: Hien Cao <hcaosc@gmail.com>
Date: 7/17/2023, 10:28 AM
To: Mark Cao <mark.cao@gmail.com>
CC: Hanh Yu <hanhcaoyu@gmail.com>

That's between you & Ho. I've assumed that was the case when you maneuvered to get power of attorney and got his house.

There are consequences to your greed and the resulting actions.

On Mon, Jul 17, 2023 at 10:25 AM Mark Cao <mark.cao@gmail.com> wrote:
You're out. I will ask Dad if medical decisions can be assigned to Hanh.

On Mon, Jul 17, 2023 at 10:25 AM Hien Cao <hcaosc@gmail.com> wrote:
This whole situation was created by you and dad.

Hanh and I tried hard to keep dad healthy when he was here. The doctors all told him that he was at high risk for a stroke because of his diet, not taking his meds and other high risk health factors.

Hanh tried really hard to provide him with a good diet and maintained his meds to help his health conditions.

Through your own selfish reasons, you manipulated him to go back to HB. Since going to HB, his health has gone to crap because of lack of care, poor diet and not seeking medical care regularly.

Yes, I haven't said much. I'm just watching the train wreck that you created under the pretense of your "good intentions".

When I signed up to help it, it was with the intention of him being up north. I can't and won't drop everything to go down to HB because you & him are stupid with the decisions that you've made.

On Mon, Jul 17, 2023 at 10:17 AM Mark Cao <mark.cao@gmail.com> wrote:
Hien,

Please, step up and take the health role seriously. I asked Dad why in the world he ever chose you as his health agent. He responded that it was a good idea because you worked for Kaiser.

The health-care agent is supposed to know Dad's values and be respectful of them. Please, learn about what Dad values and, above all, respect them. Your passivity since Dad's illness is absolutely beyond the pale and unacceptable.

Huy