I suggest we compile and combine our notes before coming back to Michelle with questions. We'll email that communication to Michelle so that we will all be included, and we make need to make very good, strategic use of her time.

No video. Video sometimes creates bandwidth problems that affect audio quality.

So it's a conference call and not by video yes?

Hien and Hanh,

I spoke again to Michelle Nguyen, the Adult Protective Services social worker. She reiterated that she wanted to do a conference call with all of us.

1. I am guessing that Thursday would be the best day to book something. My schedule is flexible, so I just need to know what would work for both of you.

And when talking to her:

2. We should offer her documentation, as it seems her investigative scope is limited.

3. IMO, we should let her know our intention of suing for conservatorship. This then should put her in a mode of thinking of (a) supporting it, (2) giving helpful tips (perhaps even attorney names), and (3) sharing her experience of when a conservatorship makes the most sense.

Thanks,
Huy
