Mom,

Updates on a few items.

- (1) Dad is okay with keeping one of the cars. So let's plan on keeping the Corolla.
- (2) I will remove the Camry from AAA insurance.
- (3) AAA is okay with renewing insurance, as long as someone else (not Dad) is the policy holder. So we can switch that to either you or me. AAA noted that Dad's driver license is invalid. Therefore they will provide insurance only if he is explicitly excluded as a driver.

Shopping around may result in a somehow lower premium, but I believe AAA is competitive, and it's best to continue AAA for now. I will let you know when I have a quote from them.

Thank you for taking care of the cars

Regarding the insurance , i have paid 1600 gor my share

I know that you have been super busy, but if you have time please take care of my car insurance.

I have a car accidents over two years ago,

And a stopping ticket that i ass traffic school test

i believe that my insurance record is clear by now

If you can rake care of my insurane, please do it

I prefer AAA. Or Geico or Farmers insurance

Please say Hello to Dad

If you decide to Pacifica senior care In union city , please me know

Thank you

I can take care of everything. When i am back grom North Carolina by the end of August

Hi Mom & Hanh,

Dad has been paying for insurance from AAA for your (Mom's) car, the Honda, but the insurance's last day is September 19th, 2023. Mom, please be sure to buy your own insurance before then to make sure your car is covered. If you need our help shopping for insurance, please let us know.

FYI, regarding what's happening with the Camry and Corolla ownership. Those two cars are covered by the same insurance as Mom's Honda. FYI, the insurance cost paid by Dad has been $3,700 annually.

The 2005 Camry (200,000 miles) has a market value of around $2K.

The 2022 Corolla (7,000 miles) seems to have a market value of around $20K. But probably less, since it has been in accidents and, even after the insurance fixes, still has a long gash on the passenger side.

I obtained the replacement pink slips for both cars, and those should be arriving in the mail any day now. Dad said he is fine with selling the Camry. So, I will do so, before the insurance expiration (9/19/2023).

As for the Corolla, I will ask Dad whether he'd like to keep the car or sell it. If he wants to keep his car for family use, I think I'll need to pay for insurance, since his paying thousands when he cannot drive wouldn't be fair to him.

Thanks,
