Mom,

I want to let you know that Dad had a big doctor appointment yesterday to do a memory assessment. The diagnosis and recommendations are not surprising given our observation of him: Mild to Moderate Dementia, Don't Live Alone, and Should not Make Financial or Health Decisions on His Own. (See Letter for more details).

As expected, he is very emotional and upset, especially about the doctor's reporting to DMV.

The most informative part is the instructions to caregivers for those with dementia and Alzheimer's. This will get more difficult, so we will take on the advice as Dad's condition changes. He seems to be getting more alert as we get a better handle on his meds and really enforce a much healthier diet and lifestyle. He is responding well to the treatment and has been in good spirits and very cooperative. Positive reinforcement!
